Minutes of the last meeting were read and there being no errors or objections, the President declared them approved.

At this time, the President, Col. L. A. Watres, stated that at the suggestion of Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, the matter of appointing a committee to visit other States and look into the matter of erection and maintenance of armories, was left until this meeting, the same to be elected by the Association and presented to the Commander-in-Chief, to be appointed by him a Board vested with full authority to perform the work.

At this stage of the meeting, Col. C. Bow Dougherty, of the Ninth Regiment, suggested that none but members of the Association and National Guard officers be allowed in the room. There being no objections to this suggestion, the President requested if there might be any who were not eligible to attend this meeting, to retire. At the suggestion of Col. C. Bow Dougherty, Major Frank Robling, 13th Regiment, was selected to act as Sergeant-at-Arms during the meeting.

On motion, duly seconded, it was decided to receive the report of the President on the matter of appointment of committee mentioned above, and that the delegates proceed to the election of a committee to be presented to the Governor, to be appointed by him a Board to visit other States and look into the matter of the erection and maintenance of armories.

The report of the Secretary was called for and by him read. There being no objections, same was received and filed.

Report of Treasurer was called for and by him read, and on motion was received and ordered filed.

Report of Committee on Laws was called for. Col. H. P. Dechert, Second Regiment, reported there had been no meeting of the Committee, but that he had prepared matters as far as possible and would call a meeting soon. Committee reported progress.

Col. Dechert also reported at this time, that at the meeting of the Inter State Association, held at Columbus, at which there were some twenty odd delegates from Pennsylvania, the Executive Committee of that Association, which had been engaged in the work of pushing the Dick Bill, had expended in their work for necessary clerical forces, etc. nearly three thousand dollars. "We contributed $50.00, and then the National Guard Association of Ohio contributed $50.00. After a short conversation, we decided to raise it to $100.00, and the Ohio Association also raised it to $100.00. This action upon our part was entirely without authority. This we ought to pay, and in order to test the matter I move the Treasurer be authorized to remit $100.00 to the Inter State Association to help meet the deficiency caused in connection with the passage of the Dick Bill." This motion was seconded by Col. McKay, of the Eighteenth Regiment, and was unanimously carried.

Letters and telegrams of regret were read from the following officers:

Maj. Gen. Charles Miller, Gen. John A. Wiley, Maj. Charles H. Worman, Capt. Fred M. Ott, J. Frank McFadden, Capt. W. S. Allen,

At this point, the President suggested that in his opinion a regular annual meeting time should be decided upon, at which time the annual election of officers should be held. A motion by Col. Dechert that the election of officers be postponed until the next meeting, and that the present officers be continued as provided for. Another motion was made that the annual meeting of the Association should be held in Harrisburg in the month of January, and that the election of officers be postponed until that time. Another motion was made that the annual meeting be held on the second Tuesday of October of each year. This motion was made for the reason that if held on Monday some of the members of the Association could not get to the meeting on account of not being able to travel on Sunday. The motion was carried.

Another motion was made that the present officers be continued for the present year. Carried.

General Hulings made a motion that the Secretary be authorized to cast the ballot for the officers. Carried. This motion was accepted as final, and the Secretary cast the ballot for the following officers, viz.:

President, Col. L. A. Watres, Thirteenth Regiment; Vice Presidents, Col. H. T. Dechert, Second Regiment, Col. Albert Logan; Secretary, Maj. W. S. Millar; Treasurer, Maj. James E. McNary, Eighteenth Regiment.

A very interesting and instructive paper on Camp Sanitation was read by Major Turnbull, First Regiment. After the reading of this paper, a motion was made by Col. Dechert that a vote of thanks be given the Major for the paper, seconded by Major W. S. Millar, and the same was carried unanimously.

Remarks were made on this paper by Major Surgeon H. A. Arnold, Sixth Regiment, in which he stated he had tried the same method of sanitation at camp, the crematory, but that he did not find it necessary to burn as much wood as did Major Turnbull. He also stated that in the building of the crematory he made the sloping wall instead of the vertical.

Major Halberstadt, Surgeon on the Third Brigade Staff, made remarks on the paper. He stated he did not find it necessary to use the crematory in his brigade, but found that with a refuse can for each company in the regiment they disposed of all refuse matter each day by dumping in the streams. He did not think it necessary to go to the expense of buying so much fuel for keeping the crematory going.

Gen. Hulings, Colonel commanding the Sixteenth Regiment in his remarks on the paper, stated that when in Porto Rico in the volunteer service they tried all kinds of methods for disposing of refuse matter, and from description given by Major Turnbull of the crematory used by him, he (Gen. Hulings) found that the crematory was the best method and had been used by his command.

At this time Col. Watres suggested to the Association that Lt. Col. F. W. Stillwell, Thirteenth Regiment, had a matter to bring before the Association. Col. Stillwell stated during his remarks that he thought there was no question of the necessity of a military education by the members of the National Guard. He stated that armories, proper equipment, and good health were all right in their way, but without a good, proper military education we could not have an efficient force. Having all this in mind, Captain Baker of the Fifteenth U. S. Infantry, suggested that there be established at Washington a Correspondence School for the Instruction of guardsmen, under the supervision of the U. S. Government, and that the course should be open to all military officers and enlisted men. Instruction could be thus given to officers who cannot afford the time to go to schools as provided by the new law. He stated that the only question in his mind was whether the National Guard wanted this sort of thing, and whether it would supply their need. I think it might be wise for this Association to place itself on record as being in favor of establishing such a school.

At this time Major Turnbull secured the floor to answer some of the remarks made by other officers upon his paper on sanitation. He stated that it was necessary to keep the stone lined wall of the crematory hot in order to dispose of the dish water and other matter, and stated that it would be impossible to get along with less wood than stated in his paper. He also stated that he thought it would not be advisable to have a crematory for more than one regiment because it would necessitate hauling. It would also cause endless trouble in the details to look after it. He also stated that he did not refer to duty in the coal fields but only in State encampments.

The question of Board to be appointed by the Governor to look into the matter of erection and maintenance of armories in other States coming up at this time, Col. Price made a motion that the President of this Association be given power to name two men from each brigade to form such Board. This was duly seconded and unanimously carried.

On motion of Col. Clement, duly seconded, it was agreed that Col. Watres, as President of this Association, be added as a seventh member of the Board and that he be chairman of same.

Adjutant General Thomas Stewart made some interesting remarks explaining to the Association why he suggested the selection by the Association of this Board to be appointed by the Governor.

Col. Dougherty made suggestions for the Code Committee as follows: To draft laws to be presented to the next session of the Legislature prohibiting the wearing or use of the National Guard uniform of the State of Pennsylvania by any outside organization. I know in our section of the State a regimental organization who are wearing the distinctive uniform of the United States Army. They look like a company of National Guard men or the regular army. One of the officers of this command visited Capt. Johnson during his inspection tour here and made the request that the old 45 calibre rifles be issued to this regiment. Capt. Johnson asked him, if they had any inclination for a soldier's life, why they did not join the National Guard. He told Capt. Johnson that they did not believe in the National Guard and that it was organized for a purpose they had no sympathy for. I find men are wearing our uniform and going into camp and are getting a certain sort of military instruction; they are taking men into their organizations who no doubt would join the National Guard.

Another matter which I would like to see referred to the Code Committee, and that is, the discrimination by the labor unions against the National Guard; have upon the statute books of Pennsylvania a law similar to that enacted and placed upon the statute books of the State of New York. I believe such a bill can be successfully passed. It was carried through the legislature of New York and received the endorsement of all the good citizens of New York. I believe this should be brought to the attention of the legislature of the State of Pennsylvania and that such a law should be passed.

I submit these matters to this Association for its views and recommendation.

The following remarks were made by Lt. Col. George C. Rickards, Sixteenth Regiment:

It seems to me that we are starting at the wrong end. We are losing sight of the fact that we must depend entirely upon the recruiting of our companies. We ought to get down—get in touch with the men. By erecting nice armories and making them comfortable and attractive places, where they could go and spend their evenings, would be an excellent thing. The thing in my mind is the place of the annual encampment. If it were known, for instance, that the Division encampment of Pennsylvania would be held at Gettysburg, I think it would help recruiting fifty per cent., and I move you that the sense of this Association, all things being equal and compatible to the authorities, that the Division encampment for 1904 be at Gettysburg.

Gen. Thomas J. Stewart is here given the floor. I hope that no action will be taken on this question. Arrangements are being made for the securing of a permanent camp ground. A Board of Officers has been named and I hope nothing will be done to throw anything in their way. They are doing everything possible for a permanent camp ground.

Col. Coryell. I wholly agree with General Stewart on that matter.

Gen. Hulings. In my opinion it is more important than that of armories—I refer now to the men, or getting men to the armories. It is no secret that recruiting is getting hard. It is no secret that employers say their employees shall not belong to the Guard. It is no secret to you that men who handle large concerns do not like to be disturbed by having men join the National Guard. It is no secret that labor organizations are against the Guard. It is no secret to men who handle companies that your company drills are averaging twelve and fifteen men. Now how are you going to get men into the armory? If you want to get a good doctor, nurse, carpenter, lawyer, you pay him what he is worth. If the National Guard is a necessary adjunct, if it ought to be a part of the government, then it ought to be supported by the government. It ought not to be necessary for the men to go constantly down into their pockets for the money that the State of Pennsylvania ought to pay. The State of Pennsylvania is doing a great deal so far as taking care of the men themselves. Not every government—every prudent government—there must be a force somewhere, when in times of trouble and excitement it is necessary to keep the people on both sides and hold up their hands. There must be a force at all times ready at the call of the government to settle their disputes in some other way than with dynamite. That is the kind of force the National Guard is. It has never been called out except to preserve the peace; called out to protect life and property. These National Guard men are simply volunteers to do what every able bodied citizen by the terms of his citizenship would be compelled to do if he were called upon, and I say of the great body of the people who are opposing the National Guard, that it is unpatriotic and carried paid department. I don't believe it depreciates the services of the Inspector who is getting a stipend for his services, or the Captain who has been working for a month to get that company ready for the inspection. My last report showed 109 enlistments of which seven were re-enlistments. I offer this to this convention as a suggestion of one way to secure attendance in your armories.

Col. Dougherty. I am in hearty accord with what Gen. Hulings says of paying men who attend drill, and of fining them for not coming. I don't think the National Guard of the State should burden her at the present time by making such a loan as would provide for this compensation. I believe it far better that the National Guard Association of the State of Pennsylvania shall recommend that this money be provided by the Federal Government. It would require $2,400,000.00 to pay the National Guard by the Federal Government. When we meet at Florida next spring we can take this matter up.

Col. Watres. Col. Watres spoke against the matter of payment to the men for attendance at drill and stated some very strong reasons for it.

to its legal sense it is treason. If it is necessary then to have these men in the National Guard, pay them for their time. I think one of the best investments that this State could make would be to prescribe a certain rate of pay for the men in the armories, provide a certain drill season every year, say from the first of October to the first of July, nine months, four drills a month. For the first drill pay them twenty-five cents, for the second drill fifty cents, for the third drill seventy-five cents, and for the fourth drill one dollar. That gives him $2.50 for the month. I would supplement that also by fining him twenty-five cents for each drill missed. For an infantry company, say of fifty-five men, it would cost $65.00 a month. That I believe would get the men into the armory. It will give a man an excuse at least when a labor organization man asks him why he goes up there; he says: "I get seventy-five cents going there to-night." I don't believe that the old volunteer fire department is as good as the

Col. Rutledge, Eighteenth Regiment. I have in mind a company of men such as has been spoken of by Col. Dougherty in my town. One of them came to me and wanted to know if I could get arms from the arsenal. I told him no, as the Adjutant General had to account for everything issued. He asked me if I would introduce him to Gen. Pressley N. Guthrie. I said I would and took him over to the bank. He stood on the first step of the bank. He told him his business, and the General asked him "Why don't your young men join the National Guard if they want to become soldiers?" He stated "Our place would be on the other side of the fence."

There are a number of young men going around wearing the uniform of the National Guard and our men salute them. There are a lot of other things they can wear and let the National Guard wear what belongs to them.

On motion meeting adjourned at 5.30 P. M.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 44 of December 21st would indicate that the inspections will be a little more rigid than of former years and it is safe to predict that the ratings of the several companies will not be as high as formerly.

The very fact of the Brigade Inspectors being accompanied by an officer from the regular establishment means the initiative of a new system. It would also appear from the following extract that "something will be doing."

"Inspecting officers are directed to give special attention to the general efficiency of commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Unless officers evidence a knowledge of their respective duties and possess ability to instruct others, and by their efficiency command the respect and confidence of subordinates, their membership in the National Guard is detrimental to the immediate organization to which they belong, and to continue them in the service—an injustice to officers and men who are studious and efficient. Where officers are found to be inefficient and negligent in the performance of their duty, the inspecting officer in such cases will make a special report, and forward same through the Inspector General's Department for the consideration and action of the Commander-in-Chief in order that where the circumstances warrant it, such officers may be discharged from the service. Where non-commissioned officers are found to be inefficient, such inefficiency will be reported by the Inspecting Officer to the Commanding Officer of the organization."

THE armory commission suggested by Governor Pennypacker to be appointed from the State National Guard Association, will convene at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Pa., on the afternoon of January 13, with Colonel Louis A. Watres as Chairman. It is expected that this Commission will decide upon a plan for the permanent improvement of the armory system and submit the same at an early date to the Commander-in-Chief for his recommendation to the next Legislature.

NOTES

Colonel S. D. Lehr (retired) and formerly of the 4th Infantry has a complete record of the organization since its muster into the State service. This he has kept in a book which is very much like the present Hutter Book. In fact, it was considered so complete in 1878 that Colonel H. M. Boies, then Commander of the 13th Infantry, purchased one for each of the original companies.

There is a strong probability of the National Guard of Pennsylvania taking part in the Fall manoeuvres with the regular establishment in a section of the State which is well adapted for this purpose, and it might be said here that the location is not more than fifty miles from Wilkes-Barre.

A school for officers of the 13th Regiment will commence on January 14th, and every subaltern will be expected to practically demonstrate the manual of the sword when called upon to do so. It is the intention of Colonel Watres to have his officers thoroughly efficient in the coming inspections, and it would not be surprising if the 13th would attain a very advanced position this year.

Captain Henry Nuss, Jr., First Infantry, will shortly relinquish command of Company C, taking the position of Captain and Quartermaster of the Regiment, upon the retirement of Captain Koons.

Captain Maurice E. Clemens, Company I, 13th Infantry, and Captain Fred R. Drake, Third Brigade Staff, will shortly visit General Stewart at Harrisburg in the interest of having the Easton company transferred to the Fourth Regiment.

Colonel Walter T. Bradley, Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, tendered a box party to the Pittsburgh members of the Governor's Staff at the Duquesne Theatre on December 16th, the play being the "Chinese Honeymoon."

Captain Howard B. Oursler, 14th Infantry, is a candidate for Assembly in the Fifth Legislative District. Captain Oursler is one of the organizers of the State National Guard Association and greatly interested in that all important armory question.

The Second Troop assembled in the armory Sunday, Dec. 20th, at 2.30 o'clock, in full dress uniform, with cape, mounted order dismounted, to attend by invitation the annual services of the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, in St. Peter's Church, 3rd and Pine Sts., commemorative of the going into camp of the American Army at Valley Forge in 1777.

Colonel C. Bow Dougherty, of the 9th Infantry, Lieutenant Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr., 3rd Infantry, and Colonel Robert Grier LeConte, Surgeon General, who were the official representatives from Pennsylvania at the Fort Riley manoeuvres, have presented their reports, which are very comprehensive and interesting. In each case they are accompanied by maps, and General Stewart will issue these in pamphlet form very shortly for the benefit of the service.

The reception of Company I, Third Infantry, to be held at Horticultural Hall will eclipse anything of the kind ever held in Philadelphia. A public reception will be tendered Major General Charles Miller and Staff, and already acceptances have been received from nine different States, as well as nearly every organization in our own establishment. The Executive and Reception Committees are doing everything in their power to make the affair an enjoyable one.

Colonel Edward R. Chambers, of Bellefonte, is mentioned as a possible successor of the late Colonel B. Frank Eshleman as Judge Advocate General on the Governor's Staff.

Ninth Regiment

The Ninth Regiment is preparing to celebrate its silver anniversary. It will be twenty-five years old on July 9. The Twelfth Regiment allowed its twenty-fifth anniversary to pass unnoticed, but its thirtieth birthday will fall on August 21, next. A concerted effort should be made to get the regiment together and have a celebration of the event, such as other regiments all over the State have been having. Of the original companies which composed the regiment, Company B, now commanded by Captain Rathmel, is the sole survivor. Company A was located in this city, Company C at Covington, Company D in this city, Company E at Mill Hall, Company F at East Charleston, Company G at Wellsboro and Company H at Alba. Of the companies now comprising the Regiment, Company A was organized March 17, 1884; Company B in July, 1870; Company C, July 31, 1879; Company D, July 30, 1879; Company E, as Company E, Eighth Regiment, September 3, 1877, and transferred to the Twelfth Regiment September 23, 1878; Company F, July 31, 1879; Company G, May 30, 1880; Company H, April 14, 1884; Company I, June 21, 1898; Company K, June 22, 1898. It has been a long time since the Twelfth Regiment has been paraded in Williamsport and its anniversary should be celebrated here, where the regiment was mustered. The first inspection and muster of the Twelfth Regiment, at which time it was organized and its field officers elected, was held in what was then Herdic Park, now the Hospital site.

General Orders, No. 43.

I. The Commander-in-Chief announces with regret the death of Colonel B. Frank Eshleman, Judge Advocate General, Staff of Commander-in-Chief, which occurred at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Thursday, December 17th, 1903.

He was appointed Aide-de-Camp, with rank of Lieutenant Colonel, on staff of Henry M. Hoyt, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, March 12, 1879; commission expired January 16, 1883. Enlisted as Private, First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, April 9, 1886. Appointed Aide-de-Camp, with rank of Lieutenant Colonel on staff of James A. Beaver, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, May 23, 1888; commission expired January 20, 1891. Appointed Judge Advocate General, with rank of Colonel on staff of Daniel H. Hastings, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, July 9, 1895; re-appointed on staff of William A. Stone, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, January 30, 1899; re-appointed on staff of Samuel W. Pennypacker, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, February 24, 1903.

Colonel Eshleman filled with ability and fidelity the various positions to which he was assigned in the National Guard. He was conspicuous as a citizen, having been chosen and appointed to positions of honor and responsibility in civil life, the duties of which were always promptly and conscientiously discharged. As a lawyer he held a high place in the profession, to which he was devotedly attached. His demise is a great loss to the military institution of the State.

II. The officers of the staff of the Commander-in-Chief will wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days from the date of this order.

By order of SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.
THOMAS J. STEWART,
Adjutant General.

Eighteenth Regiment

Corner Stone of the New Drill Hall Laid.

The corner stone of the new drill hall of the Eighteenth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, at its headquarters, on Craft avenue and Forbes street, was laid Dec. 15. All the commissioned officers of the regiment and many of the enlisted men were present.

Major James E. McNary, chairman of the building committee, spoke of the 35 years of endeavor on the part of the regiment to secure adequate quarters. While the hall is only temporary, it is a step toward the proposed armory which the regiment hopes to erect soon. Colonel Frank I. Rutledge, surrounded by his officers and men, then deposited a box in the corner stone. In the box were copies of the by-laws of the regiment, by-laws of the National Guard Association, the roster of the regiment's officers, the "State Army and Navy Journal" and the daily newspapers.

Colonel Rutledge made a brief address to his brother officers, felicitating the regiment upon the event. It was proposed to hold a grand housewarming in the new drill hall upon its completion and the colonel was authorized to appoint a committee.

Among the officers of outside regiments present was Major John P. Glass, First Infantry, West Virginia National Guard.

Sixteenth Regiment

The report of the summer inspections for 1903 has been distributed. The comparative ratings of the regiments are given. It is regrettable that it does not show the comparative ratings of the companies, because the men are deeply interested in their company ratings, and such ratings disclose to commanders the exact points of weakness.

According to the report, the regiment stands seventh, but when it is considered that between the highest and the lowest there is a difference of but 7 per cent., and that our rating is but 3 per cent. less than the highest, we have much cause for congratulation.

In "Evolutions of the Regiment" the Sixteenth stands second.

In "Extended Order" the Sixteenth stands second.

In "Books and Papers" the Sixteenth stands second.

In "Guard Duty "the Sixteenth stands fourth.

These are the great essential features in soldierly excellence.

In "Discipline," we fall below the average. We stand only twelfth in "Condition of Clothing," and when it comes to "Personal Appearance," wherein smartness, trimness and soldierly bearing are compared, we stand fourteenth. That is to say, for slovenliness, for gaping, for unsteadiness, for general unsoldierly appearance, the Sixteenth takes the cake.

These comparisons we are bound to accept, for they are made by impartial and painstaking officers, and are undoubtedly as fair and accurate as can be made. If the medicine is bitter, the dose is needed. Had the regiment averaged in "Appearance" with Companies A, B, D and E, we would have rated close to first place, but you will notice that three companies practically destroyed the regimental rating in "Appearance."

Our rank of fourth in "Guard Duty" is surely all we deserved, for without doubt we were very deficient. Many of our sentinels were green men, absolutely without instruction except what they got in camp.

The Inspector General says: "A very considerable percentage of company officers is not qualified to instruct or command men. * * the men are not receiving thorough individual training in the drill regulations. * * glaring errors were noted in faulty salutes by officers. * * movements were marred by ignorance of guides and the imperfect work of companies deficient in the School of the Soldier and Company. * * the enlisted man shows most conspicuously the need of careful instruction."

We can cure these faults, if we begin now, and pull together.

The first thing is to fill up the ranks now. The custom of recruiting just before camp means that green men are presented for inspection and we suffer in the rating. So begin now. You can get the men if you go after them in earnest. There is a lot more talk about the difficulty in getting recruits than the facts warrant.

Shortly before the last camp a captain reported that he could only get 35 men for camp. He and his first lieutenant declared that they had exhausted every effort. The case looked serious. Two bright non-coms were set at work. In 48 hours they presented 14 of the finest young men in the town to be sworn in.

It is easier to get good men if you take no bad ones. It all depends upon the force and character of the captain. A lewd fellow, or a weak-minded, good-hearted chap though he may be, who gets drunk whenever he puts on the uniform, adds nothing to the company and deters the enlistment of better material who shun, or whose parents oppose association in such company.

The respectable men in the Guard give it all its excellence. Loafers, blackguards and intemperate men, are only a handicap. The higher the moral tone, the better the company will be, and the easier to get the right kind of men into it. The stricter its requirements the more a high-spirited fellow prizes membership in it. The best sort will not long remain in a "scrub" company.

The regiment will go into camp next, probably at Gettysburg. There is a possibility that it will go to the St. Louis Fair. This will attract many, and should render enlistments easy, but a surer attraction to young men of military spirit (and such, indeed, are the material on which the Guard must depend) is the enthusiasm you must manage to create to make your company the best company in the regiment.

The plan of submitting recruits to a vote of the company is a bad one. The captain is the responsible head of the company.

Having your company enlisted you must get them into the armory for drill. You must manage somehow to interest them. If the spirit of rivalry and emulation cannot be aroused, compulsory methods are scarcely worth trying to enforce attendance at drills.

Careful judgment should be exercised in excusing men from drill. A man who has nothing to do usually cannot do anything. Most volunteer soldiers have their own living to make, and should feel sure of being excused upon application, when their daily avocations interfere with drills. (This should not include attendance at camp.) But if he is habitually engaged on drill night, he should be discharged, unless he be an exceptionally proficient man whose place it would be difficult to fill.

He who studies his company and knows human nature will invent many devices to get the men into the armory and to interest them when there. Promptness is indispensable. The faithful fellows who cool their heels for half an hour or more waiting for the captain and the laggards, eventually get tired. Half the time, probably, is wasted waiting for enough men to hold a drill. Let the drill begin promptly at the appointed hour and let it be all sharp soldiering without a let up for thirty minutes and then let the men go. From 7:45 to 8:15 leaves the evening for them practically unspoilt.

Thirty minutes weekly of individual instruction by six or eight proficient non-coms in the facings, salutes, manual, duties of an orderly, receiving and delivering orders, duties of sentinels, all under more of real soldierly bearing and smartness and style in three months than thirty years of marching and shuffling about in column of fours in a small armory. Make the non-coms responsible for the bearing of the men. Insist upon them being smart, assured, able to do the manual to the queen's taste, and able to instruct sentinels promptly and accurately. Require him to be punctilious to the extreme in military courtesy. If he is not himself a pattern soldier, try a new one.

Put the responsibility upon him and then back him up.

In regard to the manual: The first half dozen drills fix the recruit's habits. Hence the importance that he be taught singly by an instructor who corrects the faults as they occur. The manual should never be drilled "in company" until the men individually are proficient. To do so simply habituates the men to their faults, for the instructor in company drill cannot detect and correct all the errors.

Make the instruction of sentinels a great feature. This can be done in the smallest armories.

Aim at smartness, snap, precision. What is more dreary than the ordinary posting of sentinels about an armory with a listless loutish sauntering on post. Turn all this down. Require a firm military manner. Adopt a cadence of 90 steps per minute. Teach the sentinel; teach, teach. He is ready and anxious to learn and wants to be a good one. Alertness, assurance, quick responses, no lopping down. These are the points to impress on him. Begin again at the beginning. Aim at the assurance born of knowledge. Be brief, brisk, smart, precise. Illustrate these in your own bearing. The lack of these generally is due to uncertainty as to what ought to be done, making the manner of the man awkward and apologetic. His heels ought to "click" when he comes to attention.

Attention is again called to the admirable circulars issued by Lieutenant Colonel Rickards in January and March last, and the valuable suggestions therein concerning this whole matter.

The Drill Regulations and Guard Manual are printed and for sale. An officer of the Sixteenth who cares so little for his office that he neglects to provide himself with these books and neglects to make himself familiar with the School of the Soldier and Company and the duties of guides and sentinels ought to retire from the service.

What is so ridiculous as a man rigged up in military uniform taking himself seriously as an officer, who cannot even salute with the sword, or who when called to the discharge of some military duty is helplessly silly in his confusion and ignorance.

A decent self respect requires that an officer should have tolerable familiarity with his duties.

There are always the Guard Manual; the Drill Regulations; Security and Information; Organization of Tactics; to prevent embarrassments.

Considering that our regiment cannot get together except at camp, where we are brought into competition with regiments that get together every week in great armories that are provided for them, we have good reason to be proud of our standing.

For years the Sixteenth has blazed the way for the entire Division in making and keeping camp. Her camps have long been acknowledged patterns. In the last camp, the officer detailed by the Secretary of War, after paying high compliments to the Pennsylvania Guard, singled out the Sixteenth for special commendation in the practical matters of military camping.

In camp sanitation and training men how to live comfortably on the ground, soldier fashion, the National Guard of Pennsylvania has simply followed the Sixteenth.

The bearing and conduct of the regiment wherever it has been have always singled it out for commendation.

Other regiments find it difficult to secure men the equals in character and intelligence of the rank and file of the Sixteenth.

No regiment in the Guard has a brighter, more intelligent lot of officers than the line officers of the Sixteenth. As a body, I do not think their equal can be found in the service.

But the Guard is gradually improving. To lead the procession we must strike a faster gait. Simply to hold our own is to fall back.

Talk the matter over with your men. Stir their spirit and show them how, and they will do the rest.

Again I repeat, take up the individual instruction in facings, salute, carriage, manual, firings, guard duty.

Battalion Commanders will be held accountable for their commands. They will inspect their companies as often as necessary to insure uniformity and excellence. They will see that their adjutants become proficient instructors, and that they hold frequent schools for non-coms in each company before the spring inspections and require the books and papers to be carefully kept after the method uniform throughout the regiment. State transportation will be allowed for necessary travel.

There is a new deal on.

Deficient non-coms must give place to better men. Commissioned officers must qualify themselves, and when qualified must give attention to their duties or retire.

This regiment must be a better regiment. It is going to be a better regiment. Let us stand together. Let us work together. We can "hit a clip" that will make our present regiment look like 30 cents.

Field, staff, line, rank and file—the regiment, from front to rear, must quicken to new life, and higher standards.

By order of WILLIS J. HULINGS,
Colonel.
